Fourman Hill

Bognie Arms (round trip) 7km / 4.4miles
1.5 hours

One of the best landmarks north-east of Huntly with spectacular views in every direction. Following part of a historic road that The Mary Queen of Scots once travelled on. Can be a circular walk although due to tree fall the eastern path is blocked.

Start at the Bognie Arms 1 and walk up the road to the right of the building for 2km. Alternatively, you can drive up this road. There is a small parking area for 2-3 cars at end of the tarmac road at the north-eastern end of Fourman Hill. 2

Head down the broad grassy track that contours around the North of Fourman Hill, go through the gate 3 and continue along this track for around 1km.

Turn left up an informal track 4 heading up the hill just before you reach another gate 5 on the North West side of the Hill. Follow this track keeping a fence on your right until reaching a small fence. 6 Climb over this fence and head up right on a small path to the trig point. Return the same way.
